BY JAMES A. MILLS
SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.—Japanese said today the vanguard of their forces was within sight of the ancient walls of Nanking and had occupied the country home of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in the hills outside the capital.

They also announced capture of the village of Kaochiaomen, two and a half miles southeast of Nanking, toward which they were driving on a wide front.

Japanese correspondents with the forces reported Japanese troops had entered the spacious park surrounding the mausoleum of Sun Yat-Sen, father of the Chinese republic.

Dr. Sun, who died in 1925 after launching the nationalist revolution, was buried in a magnificent tomb on the slopes of the Purple mountains just outside Nanking.

The mausoleum is the shrine of modern China, generally considered the crowning architectural achievement of the nationalist regime which made Nanking its capital in 1928.

A Japanese army spokesman declared there probably would be fighting within the city tomorrow.

He announced also that Japanese had advanced toward Wuhu, Yangtze river port about 60 miles south-southwest of Nanking, and toward Chingkiang, where the grand canal and Yangtze merge about 40 miles east of Nanking.

Heavy attacks by Planes
Japanese planes, meanwhile, were reported making heavy attacks on an allegedly bewildered Chinese retreat both from Nanking and Wuhu.

Chinese sources reported the 32,720-ton Japanese battleship Nagato sunk by aerial bombs on the lower Yangtze between Tungchow and Fushan. Japanese discredited the report.

A Japanese embassy spokesman acknowledged that British consular authorities had made a telephonic report on the bombing of a British warship and two British merchantmen yesterday at Wuhu.

He said, however, no question of a British protest or of demands for compensation had arisen. The spokesman added that Japanese authorities had no statement to make about the incident.

VISITS SISTERS
AFTER MANY YEARS

Frank Reed Morgan of Salt Lake City, arrived this morning to visit his sisters, Mrs. Alice L. Scruton and Mrs. Grace Hinton, 724 West Fourth street. This is the first meeting of Mr. Morgan and Mrs. Scruton in more than forty years and it has been about thirty years since he saw Mrs. Hinton, whom he had visited in Springfield years ago.

Mrs. Scruton answered a knock at the front door of her home this morning and greeted a man, who appeared to be a stranger to her. "Hello, Grace," he said. As "Grace" is Mrs. Hinton's name, Mrs. Scruton's first thought was that it was a friend who knew Mrs. Hinton in Springfield. "I'm not Grace," she replied, "I'm Mrs. Scruton."

"Good lands, Alice, don't you know me?" said the gentleman, who then told Mrs. Scruton who he was.

Needless to say he received a hearty welcome and the two sisters and brother are enjoying a happy reunion.

Mr. Morgan had planned to make the trip to Missouri by airplane. Bad weather caused the company to abandon using a large plane and when a smaller one was put into service, he decided to come by train.

Mr. Morgan will be here several days.

A check of the robbery was made this morning and it was learned $41.38 had been stolen.

GOVERNOR NOT PLANNING FOR A
SPECIAL SESSION*Social Security Body To Study Relief Needs
Wednesday

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 6.—Governor Lloyd C. Stark asserted today he would not call a special session of the legislature unless a "very careful investigation" by the social security commission showed persons on relief "did not have sufficient food and warmth."

The executive's comment was indirectly to recent demands that the lawmakers be convened to provide increased appropriations for direct relief.

Stark said he thought the state was doing its "full share, legally and morally," by providing 60 per cent of the estimated relief costs, and that he regarded it as "perfectly fair and just" to expect the local political sub-divisions to assume the additional 40 per cent financial burden.

The social security commission will meet Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for making an investigation of the state's needs.

The governor said he planned to reply, after the commission's meeting, to a letter received today from Mayor Bernard F. Dickman of St. Louis, requesting a special session to authorize his city to vote a 1/2 of 1 per cent city sales tax to raise approximately $2,400,000 annually for relief purposes.

"The sales tax should be reserved to the state, and I don't believe it should be trespassed on by any other governmental agencies," the governor asserted at his press conference.

"Proceeds from the sales tax," he added, should be used for humanitarian purposes—relief, old age assistance, schools and other humanitarian purposes."

Figures on Relief
Stark pointed out that the state would distribute approximately $45,000,000 for relief, old age pensions and other social security purposes during 1937 and 1938.

St. Louis, he said, was getting about a third of the state allotment for relief. For December, St. Louis received $146,480 out of a total of $455,406.

While the governor did not close the door entirely to a special session, he said, "there is no likelihood of a session, as I see it now."

He added, however, that as "long as I am governor, no one is going to starve or be without sufficient warmth."

If a session were called, he said, he did not believe additional appropriations would be raised until the local governments provided their part of the cost. Unemployables should always be taken care of locally, he said.

Stark likened the shifting of the relief responsibility from the cities to the state, to the states' forcing the problem entirely on the national government.

The governor said he had heard of no agitation for a special session except from St. Louis.

SURPRISE VISIT
BY LINDBERGH TO
UNITED STATES*Slip Unheralded Into

SINCE LEAVING*Morrow Estate to Which They Went Is Being Closely Guarded

By The Associated Press

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 6.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are home from a two-year exile abroad but the guarded acres of the Morrow estate close by the rim of the Hudson river's palisades hold the secret of why they have come and how long they will stay.

The hero of American aviation and his wife, Anne, who has shared many notable flights with him, slipped unheralded into New York yesterday morning aboard the United States liner President Harding.

They had sailed from Southampton November 27 under the incognito of "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory" for their first trip to their native land since they went to England in desperate search of the sculcession they felt they could not find here—just 16 days short of two years ago.

A waiting car whisked them from the Manhattan dock to the 52-acre estate of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's 64-year-old mother, and the only word of authoritative status concerning their plans came from a ship's officer who said: "Their visit will be brief. They plan to return abroad immediately after Christmas."

A couple believed to be Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh left the Morrow estate by automobile today and sped across the George Washington bridge into New York.

Other than that, there was a bubbling spring of conjecture in a desert of fact: Opinions that the Lindberghs' trip might be a prelude to ending the exile self-imposed in an effort to rebuild the lives shattered by the kidnapping and death of their first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.; theories that he might have come on a mission connected with the expansion of American aviation; even suggestions that he might be on an errand of science connected with development of the artificial heart of which he is co-inventor.

Secret Well Kept
Whatever the purpose that impelled them to return, their secret was well kept. Telephone inquiries at Next Day Hill, the Morrow estate, brought not even an acknowledgment that the colonel and wife were there.

Guards patrolled the gateway to the quarter mile of winding driveway that led to the home only glimpsed from the main highway, even through denuded trees. Every caller was stopped, turned back. Messenger boys delivered bushels of telegrams, went away without replies.

Lighted windows in the early evening betokened a warm life within the home last night but aside from a couple of servants who had the "evening out," no one came forth, no one went in.

The Lindberghs' two children did not accompany them and it was assumed that they either were at their parents home in England or in Wales with their aunt, Mrs. Aubrey Morgan.

"Lindy" Wears Fedora
Reporters and photographers met the President Harding expecting to find nothing more exciting than the members of the Czechoslovakian trade treaty commission. A photographer recognized them as they walked down the third-class gangplank—Lindbergh in bluish-grey light top coat and grey fedora hat, in contrast to his usual bareheaded manner; his wife preceding him in a black cloth cape with fur collar and a helmet-type hat.

The colonel turned his slim back on newspaper men and ignored all questions as he and his wife hurried toward a car waiting at the curb. A faint smile flitted about Mrs. Lindbergh's lips; the colonel's face was stern and stiff.

Only Captain James A. Roberts, of the ship's crew and her 249 passengers, knew their identity when the Harding sailed.

The couple remained in a cab until the ship had cleared

With no living relatives except one sister, whereabouts unknown, young Mr. B., an orphan since childhood, has been striving to make his own way through odd jobs in Sedalia for more than a year. But there are a great many different jobs this young man could handle, if he were given a home and some encouragement. An orphan boy, alone in the world, almost a stranger in Sedalia, but proud and a willing worker—he deserves a better "break" than he has been getting the last year.

ANTI-TRUST CASE*Government Wins In High Court on Aluminum Investigation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The government won in the supreme court today in its effort to continue with anti-trust proceedings in the Southern New York federal district court seeking dissolution of the Aluminum Company of America.

A decision by a three-judge circuit court at Philadelphia permitting the department of justice to go ahead with the litigation was affirmed in an opinion delivered by Justice McReynolds. Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone did not participate.

The Aluminum Company contended the litigation, if any were needed, should have been brought before the federal district court at Pittsburgh where a consent decree against the concern was entered in 1912. In filing the suit, the government charged the Aluminum Company and 62 other defendants with monopoly and conspiracy to monopolize trade in aluminum and related articles.

The department of justice said it started the new proceedings after the aluminum company raised the price of its product several months ago.

Other Opinions Given
In other opinions the court held:

Constitutional Georgia's law requiring all male voters to pay accumulated poll taxes before they can vote, Justice Butler delivered. No dissent.

Constitutional Puerto Rico's 1907 anti-trust law, Justice Sutherland delivered. No dissent.

Texas may sue in state courts to confiscate oil allegedly illegally produced, Justice Butler delivered. Justices Stone and Cardozo dissented.

State may impose gross income tax on money received by contractor for building federal works within a state, Chief Justice Hughes delivered. Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Butler and Roberts dissented.

Natural Gas Pipeline Co., of America must give Illinois commerce commission requested data, Justice Stone delivered. No dissent.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 6. Reports that Arthur Fried, 32, member of a wealthy sand and gravel family, had been kidnapped and was being held for $100,000 ransom, brought federal agents to White Plains today. Fried vanished Saturday.

The reports said that Fried's five brothers had made a contact with a gang, believed to be holding the young man, and were trying to argue them into reducing the amount of ransom.

Westchester County police said Fried had been called as a witness in a quiet investigation of the sand and gravel business by Thomas E. Dewey, special racketeer prosecutor and district attorney-elect of New York county.

District Attorney Walter Ferris of Westchester county said he had been told that the federal authorities had taken over the investigation. He declined to say more.

Doubt Kidnap Report

Henry Fried said he believed his brother went away voluntarily.

"I think it's just a question of a little family trouble, and that's all," he said.

Generoso Pope, prominent Italian publisher, is president and a director of the Colonial Sand and Stone Company, of whose Bronx office Arthur Fried is manager.

Harold Daniels, brother-in-law of the missing man, and his wife, Fried's sister, expressed the belief Fried had had "a drink too many."

"I don't know where they got the idea that Arthur has $100,000," said Mrs. Daniels. "It's preposterous. I believe it's nothing but a drink too many, and he's probably sleeping it off somewhere."

Telephone calls to the home of Fried's mother, Mrs. Emma Fried, who lives in a palatial house in Soundview avenue, were being intercepted at the central telephone exchange and the caller's name was being noted.

FATALLY INJURED ON HIS WAY HERE

Herschel O. Noe, aged 23, a former Sedalian, was killed Friday night when a Ford sedan he was driving plunged from the slab of U. S. highway 50, turning over several times in a creek bed between Lone Jack and Warrensburg.

He was en route to Sedalia to call on Miss Louise Mergen, of 601 West Fifth street, who first learned of the accident when she received a telegram telling of his death.

The car, apparently traveling at high speed, left the highway at a bridge approach, missed the bridge abutment, hurtled down an 18-foot embankment, climbed up the opposite bank and then tumbled back. Lodging by the side of the bridge, the wrecked car escaped attention during the night and was not noticed until Saturday.

Noe, partly thrown from the car, probably died almost instantly, in the opinion of T. L. Bradley, Johnson County coroner. Noe lived at 1317 Madison avenue, Kansas City, the address also of his mother and a sister, Miss Doris Noe. His father, Ray Noe, and a brother, Lloyd Noe, were notified in Trenton, Mo.

When in Sedalia Noe was employed with the Martin Maytag Company.

Miss Mergen will go to Kansas City Tuesday to attend the funeral.

Fire of unknown origin which is believed to have started in a "wood box" near a kitchen stove, did more than $250 damage to the residence of Arthur Kriesel, 1720 South Missouri avenue, about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the blaze was discovered it had gained considerable headway but hurried work on the part of the firemen saved the structure from a greater damage.

A burning flue caused a run to the home of Dr. E. F. Yancy, 803 West Broadway about 10:43 o'clock Sunday night.

In Address For The Solemn Occasion

"Their Faults We Write Upon the Sands, Their Virtues Upon the Tablets of Memory," the motto of Elksdom to their departed brothers was given in the annual memorial services held at the B. P. O. Elks Lodge 125 home, Fourth street and Kentucky avenue, Sunday afternoon, at which time Judge Charles A. Calvird, Jr., of Clinton Lodge, was the principal speaker. The attendance was the largest in recent years.

Two eulogies were delivered by Elks to the two departed brothers of the past year, Walter J. Brill and Joseph T. Watkins.

Henry C. Salveter, exalted ruler, gave the memorial talk on Mr. Brill, while Omer B. Poundstone, past exalted ruler of the local lodge spoke of Mr. Watkins.

Mr. Salveter in his eulogy on Mr. Brill spoke feelingly of his attributes and of his being charitable and ever ready to do whatever was in his power for the interests of Sedalia and community. He told of his activities in civic affairs and of his willingness at all times to help promote advantageous programs.

Mr. Poundstone referred to Joseph T. Watkins as a man of friendliness, a citizen and Elks, who was held in high regard not only by associates in the lodge but in business and other circles.

Judge Calvird, of the 29th judicial circuit, was introduced by Mr. Salveter and opened his address by saying "In every B. P. O. Elks Lodge and Temple in the United States, such memorial services as we are holding here this afternoon, are being held in those places. Services in memory of their departed brothers."

Judge Calvird continuing stated that on the tablets of memory of the Sedalia lodge appeared 186 names, two of them being added since the last memorial service.

He spoke feelingly of the solemn occasion of observances in remembrance of those who have passed on from the days of the ancient peoples to the American Indians who in their beliefs looked to a reuniting at "the happy hunting grounds" and on to the present age when tributes from organizations, relatives and friends are paid in fitting manner.

During his address he referred to a visit to the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington National cemetery and pictured memories of others, many of high rank and some of less distinction. He told of pilgrimages to the monuments erected to George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and others who helped in shaping the life of freedom and advantages those now on earth enjoy.

His address was replete with sound logic and stressed in a general way the good deeds and accomplishments of the Elks in a brotherhood that ever keeps fresh in memory those who have passed on.

Mesdames Scotten, Ewers, Thornton, Bockelman and Miss Bernice Wood sang several songs, accompanied by Mrs. Glen Moser at the piano. They were "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide With Me," while Mrs. Ewers sang a solo, "Face to Face." The music was under the auspices of the Helen G. Steele Music Club of which the singers are members.

The services were closed with the audience singing "Auld Lang Syne," and a prayer by the lodge chaplain, Virgil Carson.

READY FOR SANTA CLAUS

Sedalia is ready for the arrival of Santa Claus on his pre-Christmas visit Tuesday and merchants have made ready for the Yuletide in a most elaborate way through assembling holiday goods from near, far and wide and are prepared to meet the wants of the multitudes of holiday shoppers that will be increasing daily.

These merchants maintain their establishments for high class service to their customers and invite inspection and comparison. If a purchaser does not see display in windows or on counters what is sought, asking for it will in most all instances reveal that the wanted item is in stock.

Central Missouri's principal marketing city is Sedalia. It is within easy motoring distance for towns which in earlier years were considered remote, and it is the aim and purpose of Sedalia merchants to give special attention and the best of care to these visiting shoppers. They are in business not only for the convenience of Sedalians, but in a large measure to supply the needs of this whole section.

Sedalia has as excellent stores as are to be found in any of the cities of the country of comparative size and they should be given first chance at supplying every item on every shopper's list.

Money spent in Sedalia goes into circulation in this section and it pays persons who spend their salaries and wages to do their purchasing here.

At the present holiday stocks are at their best with a wide range of selectivity. They have not yet been picked over nor the variety reduced and the early shopper thus is assured of escaping the last minute crush. A much better choice is now offered than if one waits until the early shoppers have gone off with the very things one had in mind.

Sedalia has fully prepared for Santa Claus and is ready to give every assistance in making Christmas of 1938 one of the most joyful and happy occasions of any observance in a long period of time.

A WEAK TWO-SUITER

From Joplin Globe—The domestic castle of dreams of the Ely Culbertsons has collapsed like a house of cards, according to Ely, and Mrs. Culbertson is on her way to Reno.

While he should be feeling as low as the deck of clubs in a dirty deck, because of inability to fulfill the heart contract he entered 14 years ago, Ely manifests his well-known dislike to playing the dummy and bids for sympathetic understanding on the part of the public.

It seems it is one of those "certainly, my dear, if that's what you wish," marital wrecks. Ely confesses to being temperamental, given to fits of abstraction, and altogether a mental monster that no woman could be expected to get along with. The wonder is that Mrs. Culbertson has tried as long as she has to play the hand out. It is a wonder she didn't throw cards in his face and kick over the table two years ago.

This, note bene, is Mr. Culbertson bidding against himself. The only little slam emanating from the other side is that Ely insisted on writing the story of his life entirely too frankly—which will arouse the suspicion in the minds of some that the Culbertsons may be promoting this whole divorce business with the idea of steaming up some fresh publicity to sell another Culbertson book. They have been making only a couple of hundred thousand a year and in these days of expensive bridge tables and smokers' knick-knacks it is obvious something had to be done.

However, the public can be assured the whole business will be handled with finesse and if hearts are positively out, so far as the contract is concerned, which also seemingly eliminates diamonds, at least it isn't going to be clubs.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

R. V. Denny, residing seven miles southwest of the city Friday had an automobile, garage, buggy and carriage shed destroyed by fire which is supposed to have originated from sparks blown from a garden which had been burned off during the forenoon.

Miss Velma Lyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lyon, 1510 South Osage avenue, was given a delightful surprise at her home Friday night.

(This is the first of a series of articles on housing—now one of the most important problems before the Roosevelt Administration.)

WASHINGTON—The problem of housing has been approached from many different directions by the New Deal, but still remains unsolved. It is one of the most confused questions in Washington. This diversity of attack also has confused the public, and for purposes of clarification, it should be noted that there have been three different approaches to the housing problem:

1. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation (HOLC) inaugurated under Hoover to handle mortgages on homes already constructed which the banks considered poor risks.
2. The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) inaugurated by Roosevelt to finance the building of new houses and repairs on old ones.
3. The Housing Division of the Public Works Administration also inaugurated by Roosevelt to erect large scale apartments or community centers as an effort at slum clearance. These are intended for the lower income group. More recently this work has been taken over by the newly created Housing Authority under the Wagner Act.

The President's message to Congress dealt only with No. 2, namely the FHA, for the financing of private home construction with government aid.
Jimmy Moffett
The Federal Housing Administration was established by Congress in 1934 and had the misfortune to be placed in charge of James A. Moffett, who probably did as much to retard housing as anyone—with the possible exception of the building and loan associations.

Jimmy Moffett contributed $12,000 to the Roosevelt campaign and early leaped aboard the Roosevelt bandwagon. He deserved reward—and got it—though at the expense of the tax-payer.
Son of a wealthy oil man, Jimmy grew up among the different Standard Oil companies, now is vice president of Standard Oil of California. Jimmy's troubles seemed to follow him wherever he went. First he joined the NRA, resigned a $100,000 a year job as vice president of Standard Oil of New Jersey after a quarrel with Walter Teagle, president.

Roosevelt next made him Housing Administrator, and he promptly fell in love with Mrs. Adeline Kim "Tugboat Annie" Moran, whose former husband once controlled the tugboat business of New York harbor.

Just about the time Jimmy divorced his first wife to marry Mrs. Moran, the first Mrs. Moffett was killed in a fall from the window of her New York apartment.
Then Jimmy's daughter, Adelaide, married David "Winkie" Brooks, nephew of Lady Astor, at rather an early age, and shortly thereafter her husband was killed in a fall from a New York hotel window.

Then Jimmy and "Tugboat Annie" were divorced, later remarried, and then divorced again.
Hard On Housing
All of this was something of a setback to the Federal Housing Administration of which Moffett was the boss. But the President, always lenient where human beings are concerned, let Jimmy stay on until September, 1935, when he resigned and was replaced by Stewart McDonald, one of his assistants.

Mr. McDonald, former St. Louis police commissioner, had married into the Moon Motor Car family. Eventually both his marriage and Moon Motors broke up (though the two smash-ups were not necessarily related) and Mr. McDonald came to Washington where he appeared in riding breeches at swank cocktail parties.

Mr. McDonald was regarded as a better Housing Administrator than Jimmy Moffett. It is quite possible that the housing fall was neither Jimmy's nor McDonald's for it is hard to persuade the public to build houses. This point will be taken up in subsequent articles.

But be that as it may, the accomplishment of neither was anything to write home about.

Housing Promotion

Jimmy Moffett devoted most of his efforts to ballyhoo. This was not entirely a bad idea, since it was necessary to show the man in the street how he could now borrow money from his own bank to build a home. (The FHA guaranteed all housing mortgages undertaken by the banks.)

So Jimmy went on the air with a series of broadcasts, and hired a staff of newspapermen in Washington as publicity promoters. Federal Housing became the greatest ballyhoo agency of the Government, which is saying a lot during these ballyhoo-minded days of the New Deal.

The result was that thousands of letters asking for loans poured into the FHA. A lot of people wrote in who had no possible chance of repaying mortgages and some of them borrowed money from the banks on the government guarantee of repayment.

It was the greatest publicity campaign put on in Washington since the days when William Gibbs McAdoo floated the Liberty Loans. But when all the smoke had cleared away and the results were in, the number of houses built was pitifully small.

No Real Results

In 1935, the first full year of operation (the FHA act was passed by Congress in June, 1934) only 42,147 mortgages were issued. Of these, only one-half were for new homes, the remainder being to finance repairs.

Next year this figure went up to 109,611 mortgages issued, of which one-half again were new homes and the other half for repairs. Figures are not complete for this year, but during the first ten months, FHA issued 94,642 mortgages.

These figures mean very little unless compared with pre-depression building. During the six years from 1920 through 1926, the country built an average of 550,000 houses a year. Against this, the largest number of houses constructed through FHA financing in any one year was only about 55,000. This does not include privately financed building, but this was negligible.

In other words, with all the ballyhoo of Jimmy Moffett and all the stimulus of government guarantees, housing had diminished to only one-tenth of what it was before the depression.

Meanwhile the loss of houses by fire, hurricane and deterioration has been about 100,000 annually.

(The next article on housing will describe President Roosevelt's new housing bill.)

FOLLOW-UP SCHEDULE IS NEEDED

It is unfortunately necessary in the conduct of human affairs at times to refer frankly to situations which ordinarily are not discussed. But however objectionable these things may be to many people, progress can be made in some enterprises only by facing the facts, and certainly progress has been made in the conquest of tuberculosis by a courageous acknowledgement of the situation that exists, and especially it has been made by the cooperation of those who have discovered and who acknowledge that they have the disease.

The eradication of tuberculosis, an object which is possibly going to be accomplished within the generation of young people now alive, will be accomplished by identifying every person who has the disease: it is the prime idea of experts that when one case of tuberculosis is discovered, the household in which it was discovered must be examined in order to see whether any other

Christmas At Church And School

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

FOR WEEKS before Christmas many classes, typically in the primary grades, make many things suggestive of Christmas. In some classrooms, the school work, especially reading, will be centered about these activities, and with good results.

Many of the younger children, even older ones, are motivated and guided at school in making small gifts for their parents. If your child should bring home such a gift, however crude it is, express genuine appreciation. His heart has been wrapped up in it!

Formal Christmas programs which require long rehearsals in school and out of school, with much wear and tear on the teacher and neglect of regular school work and of those children not participating, are slowly passing. And for the children's sake, we are glad that they are passing. Singing of Christmas carols has a proper place, however, if the standards for achievement are not unduly high.

Special Church Programs

In many church there will be special Christmas programs put on by children, and occasionally at too much cost of sleep and nervous energy consumed in rehearsals. But what distresses me most about some of these programs is that little children, individually, will have to say pieces or sing songs. And if one of them should forget his lines, the adults of the audience will laugh uproariously at him. I wonder how he feels. What barbarism! And in the name of Christianity! Celebrating the birth of Christ!

When church leaders are wiser and more nearly Christian, they will not so exploit little children. They will try to educate parents to be more humane and less barbarous. And they will not have individual young children perform in public. They will have group performances.

It seems to me that in our public schools Jewish children should not be expected to participate in Christmas ceremonies if they or their parents, on religious grounds object. Suppose most of the teachers of our public schools were Jewish. How would we Christians like to have our children forced to celebrate at school one of the religious festivals of the Hebrews? And just now, with so much hatred in the world, it behooves us to be peculiarly tolerant toward all our fellowmen. And would not this tolerance be a fitting tribute to the philosophy and life of Jesus?

person there has the disease, because we know that at present the most prolific means of spread of tuberculosis is by contact from person to person.

Little Known Disease

Consider how little our grandfathers knew about the spread of this disease. In the eighteenth century, Portal, professor of medicine at the College of France, said: "In the Journal of Paris it was reported in the year 1780 that a young man 20 years old had contracted tuberculosis by using the belongings and especially a fur coat of his father who had died of tuberculosis. Would it not be more natural, instead of this, to think that the child had inherited the disease from which his father had died, a disease which also had carried off four of his uncles and that he had died of hereditary tuberculosis? And yet this observation, which furnishes so slight a proof that tuberculosis is contagious, has been cited in favor of this opinion. One undoubtedly would reduce many observations of this kind to their proper value if one would subject them to a thoughtful and impartial investigation."

Thus wrote a thoughtful and learned professor of medicine. Death spared him the fate of facing Villemain's and Koch's works, which proved beyond the question of a doubt the contagiousness of tuberculosis.

Villemain was the man who proved in a military hospital in Paris that tuberculosis spread from one infected soldier to another. The tragedy of tuberculosis is that it is spread from those who are closest and dearest. Every worker in tuberculosis can cite the case of one lover infecting the other. There is perhaps no more common method of disseminating infection. Opie cites work on marital tuberculosis carried out at the University of Pennsylvania, which shows that if one partner of a marriage has active tuberculosis the other will show definite evidence of the disease in 50 per cent of the cases.

Poems That Live

"WHEN YOU ARE OLD"

After Pierre de Ronsard

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep;

How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved your beauty with love false or true;
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your changing face.

And bending down beside the glowing bars,
Murmur, a little sadly, how love fled;
And paced upon the mountains overhead
And hid his face amid a crowd of stars.
—William Butler Yeats.

One Minute Pulpit

The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.—St. John 3:8.

READ THIS FIRST:
Tim Kennedy graduated into would-be homicide from the school of criminal practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London. Tim, at middle age, feels nappy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home one week later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow. He becomes infatuated and finally decides that Esther must die. Trying to work his wife into a state of despondency over her condition, so he can take a suicide. Tim feels the time for the poisoning is ripe. His plans are spoiled when Dr. Harold Arkwright, Esther's uncle, in discussing Esther's condition, tells him he is positive she never would take her own life. During a sea cruise Tim ponders over other means of ridding himself of his wife and Alma.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 21
DURING Esther's second nightmare on shipboard she did not scream—or if she did, not sufficiently loudly to awaken Tim or attract any other attention. What did wake him was a sudden draught of cold air blown into the cabin from an electric fan outside.

He jumped to the floor and saw that Esther's berth was empty. An instant later a heavy crash from a little distance away sent him racing down the corridor. Others who had heard the noise were close behind him—it was not yet 1 o'clock, and many of the people on board had not retired for the night. Among them was the ship's doctor, and it was he who discovered Esther crumpled on the floor at the foot of the stairs leading to the dining saloon.

The stairway was fortunately short, and against all probability she had escaped serious hurt. Bruised knuckles, which she had knocked against the banister, and a slightly twisted ankle, were the extent of her injuries. She was awake when she was found, though it took her a minute or two to understand where she was. Her mind had traveled back to an hotel in Rome, where the Kennedys had slept in a high room reached by a swift and vertiginous elevator; and somehow she had got into the well of the elevator, which began to descend upon her.

It was the ship's doctor who carried her back to the cabin. It was only his second trip after qualifying, and he treated the case with great solemnity, making Esther lie up the whole of the next day, and personally administering enormous yellow capsules of uncertain composition at regular intervals.

He was a very earnest young man, with close-cropped fair hair, a broad, pink face, and china-blue eyes blinking naively through gold-rimmed spectacles. He had a talk with Tim, and as he spoke some French but very little English, unjustifiably assuming that the latter tongue was practically identical in vocabulary with the former, his meaning tended to be elusive.

"The Couch-mare," he said, "verray dangerous. When infant, bagatelle; when adulter, verray dangerous. I have known gents to cass the brass, the jamb. I have known a mister ject himself from a high fenester; he blessed to death. The Couch-mare verray dangerous."

It was said to think that this excellent young man should have sealed Esther's fate. It was his last instance that gave Tim the cue he had been waiting for, the case of the mister who jected himself from a high fenester and was blessed to death. For Tim knew of just such a high fenester. . . . From that moment it was only a question of working out the detail.

The rest of the voyage passed without any further outbreak from Esther. The other passengers did not quite ostracize the Kennedys, but they tended to avoid them. It was felt that such a malady was distressing and not quite seemly; besides, many people had their pet version of the first disturbance, and were indignant and resentful at having it exploded.

But the night before the ship called at Dover, Tim tried an experiment. The first step was to ensure that Esther should get three or four hours sound sleep. He did not give her medical, because he wanted the conditions of this rehearsal to approximate as closely as possible those which would obtain when the performance was enacted in earnest. And he was not going to use medical then; in the event of a post-mortem traces of a recent dose, inconsistent with nightmare-haunted sleep, would certainly be found.

Instead, making the excuse that it was their last night on board, he called for a magnum of champagne, and filled and refilled Esther's glass until she had drunk over a pint. Esther habitually drank little or nothing, but she liked to let herself go on rare occasions. Excess of alcohol invariably induced in her a childlike glee over the bedclothes. She never stirred. An hour or so later she awoke. She called out softly, "Tim, dear, are you awake?"

"Yes, darling?"

"Will you get me a glass of water?"

He climbed down, switched on the light, and did as she asked. "How are you feeling, Esther?" he asked.

"Awful. . . . I shouldn't have had that champagne."

"You'll be all right in the morning. . . . Any bad dream?"

"Not a dream. . . . That's better. I think I could go to sleep again now."

"Righto! Good night, dear."

"Good night!"

He switched off the light, and climbed back into his bunk, well content. Within a few minutes he was asleep.

OFFERS VILLAGE FOR SALE AT $8,000

NEW LEBANON, Ill., Dec. 6.—For sale: "The village of New Lebanon, consisting of four houses and a store with four living rooms in the rear."

That was the advertisement T. B. Gray, the 80-year-old one-man owner, inserted in a Genoa newspaper, but he admitted today the offer created little interest except among the village's 16 remaining residents.

Gray confided in friends that he would sell the 60-year-old village "lock, stock and barrel" for $8,000.

He said he purchased it two years decades ago at an administrator's sale in Geneva, but plans to incorporate fell through because of a lack of population. During the horse and buggy days, and before concrete highways virtually isolated the village, there were 30 houses on its one square mile site.

Two buildings will escape sale—the school house which is owned by the school district, and the depot, which was sold some time ago.

MISSOURI MAN LEADS CLEANUP OF N. Y. CRIME

Federal and City Officials Join in Breaking Up Organized Rackets

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—New York has become "definitely hot" for the underworld.

A series of narcotic raids, following closely on the Dewey racket-busting campaign and the "slap 'em down" orders of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, has added a sizzling touch to the dramatic clean-up.

Discussing the latest offensive against organized crime, Major Garland Williams, district chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, said:

"The heat is on. That's known to the underworld all over. They're either going to move out of the city or go to jail. They can take their choice."

Operating in conjunction with other agents throughout the country, Major Williams said his men smashed three international rings of smugglers and distributors during the last two months and were closing in on a fourth.

"In a few weeks," he said, "we will have things definitely under control."

Born in Missouri

The Missouri-born army reserve officer, who became head of the New York district a year ago, has established a new policy of maneuvering whole narcotic syndicates into his traps before springing them.

"Our chief concern, of course, is to get the big shots," he said, "but we are not satisfied with stopping there. We want the whole organization."

Four months after Major Williams came here to take charge of the district—he formerly was superintendent of the customs border control at El Paso, Texas—a raiding party swarmed over a little British freighter in the harbor and seized half a million dollars' worth of opium and eight prisoners.

It was the opening gun of the major offensive that started in October.

Their watches synchronized, a small army of agents in New Orleans made the first of series of simultaneous raids on the night of October 4. A total of 74 persons including 12 women, were indicted as members of that gang, which was charged with handling up to $25,000,000 worth of narcotics in the last two years.

Cleanup "Chinese Mob"

"We cleaned out the whole organization," said Major Williams. Then came the fantastic roundup of what he referred to as "the Chinese mob," on November 19. Two agents, posing as nephews of a powerful underworld leader, and buying narcotics lavishly, had worked for two years to penetrate the mystic barriers of a Chinese secret society.

One of them succeeded in obtaining a letter of introduction to the leaders of the society in Chicago. Before presenting it, he took the precaution of having it photographed and translated, to make sure it was not his death warrant.

Oriental reserve broke down completely when the agents presented not only the letter but also a sheaf of ringside tickets for the Louis-Braddock fight last summer. They were accepted as members of the secret organization, and were initiated at an elaborate ceremony.

On the basis of information they obtained at the constant risk of their lives, a half hundred fellow agents descended suddenly on members of the gang in Chicago, San Francisco, Butte, Mont, Pittsburgh, and New York.

Twenty-three prisoners were taken, including the wife and brother of Thomas (Tommy The Bull) Pennington, notorious member of the Charles (Lucky) Luciano gang which was broken up by special prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey.

PRESIDENT BACK TO WHITE HOUSE

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON. Dec. 6.—President Roosevelt, returning from a curtailed southern vacation for possible surgical treatment of an infected tooth pocket, traveled across the Carolinas and Virginia today on a schedule arranged to place him at the White House about 4:30 p. m.

Capt. Ross T. McIntire, his naval physician, told reporters the President's general physical condition was "excellent and the week of fishing and sunshine has benefited him greatly."

Replying to questions, the President said he would have no more messages for the special session of congress, but expected to confer with Democratic leaders soon after reaching Washington. No times had been set, though, he added.

Asked about his conferences during the cruise with Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust law prosecutions; Secretary Ickes, and Relief Director Harry L. Hopkins, he smiled and replied there had been many arguments aboard ship—over fish.

Some of his ship companions, however, indicated there was plenty of serious talk. Stronger anti-trust legislation, new relief needs, and liquidation of the emergency public works administration under Ickes were believed to have been discussed.

Regarding the slow-healing and still-draining gum, Cap. McIntire said:

"It is nothing unusual. We simply want to get the dental care that he needs. That is using common sense."

Side trips originally planned for the President to Warm Springs and Gainesville, Ga., were cancelled. He said he probably would go to these places in the spring.

The President said he fished as much as the others and if it had not been for his jaw he would have caught the largest and the most fish. Best catch was a 25-pound barracuda by Jackson.

OFFERS BABE'S BODY IN MEDICAL STUDY

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The youthful parents of 12 day old Daniel Ennesser, eleventh victim of a mysterious malady in St. Elizabeth's hospital, offered the body of their first born today that medical science might seek the cause of the intestinal disease.

John G. Ennesser, the father, said he and his wife, Angeline, 26, "thought it would help the other little babies" if doctors performed an autopsy on their child.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health, said the autopsy would be performed by Dr. William Saphir, chief pathologist of Michael Reese hospital, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold, bacteriologist of the Illinois department of health.

The Ennesser babe died last night as medical science marshaled its forces to save seven other infants stricken with epidemic diarrhea.

Nineteen babies have been stricken with the disease, diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea, since November 23 when the first death occurred. One infant, Sandra Traska, six weeks old, was taken home, apparently cured, but will be kept under care of health department doctors.

THEFTS ARE REPORTED FROM AUTOMOBILES

Two automobiles were broken into sometime Saturday evening by thieves who stole articles which had been purchased by the drivers of the cars.

W. H. Nichols, reported while his car was parked in the 200 block on East Main street, groceries had been taken.

Mrs. Lewis Connor, 608 East Twelfth street, reported while her car was parked near Third street and Ohio avenue, several articles of wearing apparel were taken.

Hundred Caught In Vermont Accused of Violating Blue Laws

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Dec. 6.—(P)—The "sins" of their forefathers today weighed heavily upon the shoulders of Windham county residents.

A blue Monday found at least 100 persons caught in the toils of a law laid down by Vermont's early settlers to ward off the "sulking redskin" and the "devil."

Investigators yesterday scribbled down their names as they went about enforcing a blue law banning on the Sabbath day "any secular business or employment except work of charity."

More might have joined those against whom State's Attorney Ernest F. Berry said he would seek warrants today in the "blue law crime wave." But weary police suffered an attack of writer's cramp as the day wore on.

Here's how enforcement of the ancient statute worked:

There may be no argument about it among the duffers, but golf in this hilly state is a form of work. A foursome found that out when it ventured forth on a bleak course and was neatly stymied by officers who read them the blue law.

Enforcement of the law revived memories of prohibition days.

"Psst," hissed ice cream addicts to the drug store girls, "can I buy a cone here?"

"Is it a necessity," whispered the girls, "can you get along without it?"

"Won't last a day unless I get it" came the answers.

Said a physician to a soda clerk: "So I can't get a milk shaken, hey?"—and then promptly wrote himself a prescription

PRESIDENT WILL FIND PROGRESS ON PROGRAM SLOW

Roosevelt Soon Complete Budget Estimates for New Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Although President Roosevelt will discover on his return from Florida tonight that his legislative program has made little progress, congressional chiefs will report to him that several widely rumored revolts have not materialized.

When congress assembled three weeks ago, there was much speculation over the possibility that it would sidetrack the President's recommendations and substitute a business aid program of its own.

Instead, the two houses have devoted themselves exclusively to administration proposals, except for a week of debate in the senate on the anti-lynching bill, which had a preferred legislative status.

Many observers had commented that Mr. Roosevelt, in calling the special session, was inviting congressional back-fires on his nomination of Supreme Court Justice Black and on his foreign policies, particularly his failure to invoke the neutrality act in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

While there has been cloak-room discussion of both subjects, neither has been more than barely mentioned in the debates. Congress has not shown officially that it knew of Black's statement he once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan.

The most serious threat to the President's program early in the session was the campaign to force immediate corporate tax revision. Leaders were ready to report most legislators accepted the administration's decision to wait until the 1938 session.

Opposition on Farm Bill There has been plenty of controversy over the President's own recommendations. The farm bill has run up against strong senate opposition. Most other Roosevelt recommendations will not be reached at the special session.

Although house leaders succeeded in breaking the deadlock which had held the wage-hour bill in the rules committee since summer, the measure will face strong opposition during house debate next week.

In its present form, the bill would empower a five-member federal board to fix minimum wages only as high as 40 cents an hour and a work week not shorter than 40 hours. Rep. Ramspeck, (D-Ga.) quoted one member opposed to the bill as saying he was considering an attempt to jack the wage minimum up to $1 an hour.

Majority Leader Rayburn (D-Tex.) predicted there would be "less than 100 votes against this bill."

Mr. Roosevelt, besides surveying the congressional situation, soon will complete next year's budget estimates and will continue his studies of the business situation.

It was learned that J. P. Morgan, the financier, was in Washington Friday—the day on which Lewis Douglas, former budget director, discussed business conditions with a group of senators. The reason for his visit was not disclosed.

Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.), who attended the Douglas meeting, said politics was not discussed. He quoted Douglas as saying "repeal or modification of the corporate taxes would help business but 'wouldn't be enough.'"

STATUS OF BILLS AT SPECIAL SESSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Here is the status of President Roosevelt's legislative program at the start of the special session's fourth week:

Farm—House may vote Wednesday; senate, where much criticism of crop control bill has been heard, has limited debate to hasten a vote.

Wage-hour—House will consider the bill next Monday, a majority of members have signed a petition to free it from the rules committee.

Housing—Senate and house committees are holding hearings on a program to stimulate home construction.

Regional planning—House committee has held occasional hearings, but no action is expected before 1938.

Government reorganization—Bills ready for debate, but probably will not come up at this session.

UNUSUAL THEME IN "WRONG ROAD" MAKES FINE FILM

Film patrons are promised something new tomorrow at the Sedalia Theatre, something daring, and different. Republic has departed from the usual tradition in filming "The Wrong Road" which opens there tomorrow, and has presented the leading romantic characters as wrong-doers who plot their crime cold-bloodedly, are prepared to pay the consequences, and then live on velvet the rest of their lives on the funds they have embezzled. The picture is said to be remarkable in that the leads, Richard Cromwell and Helen Mack, so skillfully delineate the characters of two spoiled youngsters who have been brought up to believe that the world owes them a living, that they never lose their audience sympathy, and they win a dramatic triumph when they at last learn their hard lesson that there is no easy road to riches.

Richard Cromwell is always welcome news to film fans, who have followed him ever since his memorable triumph in "Tolable David." And little Helen Mack is a gal who is going places fast out Hollywood way. There is a wistful, fragile quality about her acting that one does not soon forget.

The piece is directed by James Cruze, a veteran hit-maker, Lionel Atwill has an important character role, and other supporting characters are played by Horace

PAUL MUNI GROWS BEARD FOR FILM

On account of Paul Muni's would have been impossible for Muni to grow a luxuriant crop during the progress of the picture, Director William Dieterle made the later days of the famous French writer first and the star's whiskers—a naturally heavy growth—gradually faded away by trimming, to a mere whisper as the picture progressed in reverse order.

As the story naturally starts with Zola as a young man, with not a trace of a beard, and it MacMahon, Russ Powell, Billy Bevan, Marjorie Main, Rex Evans, Arthur Hoyt, Syd Saylor and Chester Clute.

The driver of the other vehicle was arrested and is being held by the police in Kato.

The large truck a Ford V-8 had a trailer type van attached and was loaded with potatoes. It was completely demolished by the fire. The loss was estimated at more than $3,500.

Surprise Visit
By Lindberghs To
United States

Queenstown. Orders were given that no radio messages should be sent concerning their presence on board.

Dine at Captain's Table
Charles Holldorf, second steward of the liner, who served the Lindberghs, told a typical story. His first intimation that "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory" were persons of importance came in a request from Captain Roberts that he ask them to dine at the Captain's table.

"I went to their cabin and knocked on the door," Holldorf related. "I asked the lady if I could talk to Mr. Gregory."

"The lady seemed somewhat confused for a moment. Apparently she had forgotten the name they had given. Then she said, 'Oh, yes, Mr. Gregory.'" and Colonel Lindbergh stepped forward. He said "You undoubtedly recognize me, I am Colonel Lindbergh and I do not want any publicity at all."

Echo of Kidnaping
An echo of the Lindbergh kidnaping—most famous crime in American history—accompanied the Lindberghs' return. From New York, the Citizens Protective League, a German-American organization claiming 50,000 supporters, sent telegrams to Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, and to Lindbergh asking that payment of the reward for apprehension of the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., be "suspended" because "the real culprits have not yet been caught."

Disposition of the $25,000 reward by the state has not been settled. There are 30 claimants. The telegram to Lindbergh also asked that he "please do something for Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, widow of the man who was executed in 1936. The message, over the signatures of Kurt Mertig, merchandise broker and chairman of the league, said Mrs. Hauptmann is "bereft of her support and in dire distress."

The league has actively opposed anti-Nazi boycotts and has had extensive correspondence with Hoffman concerning the Hauptmann case.

Supporters of the theory that aviation lay back of Lindbergh's surprise trip pointed to the resumption of hearings in Washington next week on a proposal that the government subsidize trans-oceanic air lines by lending 75 per cent of the cost of building aircraft for foreign trade. Pan-American Airways, of which Lindbergh is technical adviser, has been represented as opposing the subsidies which, persons close to the maritime commission said, would be available to competitors of Pan-American, as well as to that company.

Anticipate Return
LONDON, Dec. 6.—(P)—British newspapers broke their months of comparative silence on the doings of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today in New York dispatches announcing their arrival in America.

Some of the newspapers expressed pride that the Lindberghs had found in England the peace and seclusion they had been "unable to find" in their native land.

The displayed prominently New York accounts asserting that "scenes of enthusiasm like those when Lindbergh returned after his Atlantic flight" marked the arrival of the Lone Eagle and his wife.

There were confident predictions that the couple would return shortly to the country which had been their unobstructed host for nearly two years in order to take up again their secluded life with their children.

The fact that their two sons—Jon, 5, and seven-months old Land Morrow—were left behind was taken as an indication that the surprise visit to their homeland would be a brief one.

The children were believed to be either at the Lindbergh estate, "Long Barn," near Seven Oaks, England, or in Wales with Mrs. Lindbergh's sister, Mrs. Aubrey Niel Morgan.

The tactful flier arrived in England December 31, 1935. As he wished, the Lindbergh family has been left strictly alone.

Since Lindbergh rented "Long Barn" March 3, 1936, Seven Oaks residents have cooperated to the fullest extent to aid the couple in maintaining privacy. Many of the villagers today would not know either Col. Lindbergh or his wife if they saw them.

How well they achieved their seclusion was shown on May 24. Then it was disclosed that on May 12—Coronation day—Land Morrow Lindbergh was born in a London nursing home.

Wishes Them "Merry Christmas"
WESTERLY, R. I. Dec. 6.—"The Westerly Sun announced today it would not report the "daily intimate family affairs" of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh while in this country, because, said its editor, George B. Utter, it was felt this was "none of our business." The paper wished them a merry and "unnoticed" Christmas.

Girls Are Questioned
Virginia Brooks, 17, Frances Brown, 17, and Mary Ellen Eakin, 17, believed to be three girls who ran away from Wichita, Kas. are being questioned at police headquarters this afternoon.

Japanese Draw
Near Nanking's
Ancient Walls

Britons were injured. The Tuck-wo, belonging to the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company, was set afire and was believed to be a total loss.

Officials of the company said they understood the Tuck-wo had between 2,000 and 3,000 Chinese refugees aboard. She rammed into a British-owned landing hulk which also burned.

The crew of the other British ship, Tatum, owned by the China Navigation Company, beached the vessel on the Yangtze shore after British naval men helped get her out of danger.

Several civilians aboard a launch belonging to the British Asiatic Petroleum (Shell) Company were reported wounded by bomb fragments. Belief that some Britons were aboard was not confirmed.

No American Injured
Although 24 Americans still were at Wuhu, none were injured.

Japanese said only Chinese junks carrying Chinese troops were bombed.

A Japanese spokesman said air raiders bombed and set fire to fuel tanks, airbases and Chinese defense positions in the vicinity of Nanking.

He said Japanese planes stabbed deep into China's interior and destroyed four large bombers and ten smaller planes, all allegedly of Russian manufacture, at Lan-chowfu, capital of Kansu, the province bordering Tibet. Two Chinese pursuit ships also were reported shot down.

Japanese naval fliers were said to have destroyed a Chinese airbase in a bombing raid at Kungshing, near the Lunghai railroad, China's main east-west trunk line.

Batteries Into Action
BY C. YATES McDANIEL
NANKING, Dec. 5.—(Delayed)—I arrived today at Kuyung, 30 miles by road east of Nanking, just as a Japanese projectile exploded inside the walled crossroads town.

Unknown to Nanking's populace and surprising to all except China's highest military quarters, a Japanese column striking west from the Grand canal and the Shanghai-Nanking railroad had advanced to within 35 miles of the capital.

I was making a tour of Nanking's outlying defenses when I saw the explosion of the missile from a Japanese gun located about five miles from Kuyung. The town's Chinese defenders rushed to man their positions while from a nearby ridge Chinese light artillery and machine-guns unlimbered. It was the first time these batteries had gone into action in the Nanking area.

(Japanese officials at Shanghai reported today, Dec. 6th, that their forces had captured Kuyung. The town is about 20 air miles from Nanking.)

Behind the lines other soldiers rushed to carry out a headquarter's order that everything of possible use to the Japanese, even to blades of grass, be burned or destroyed.

Within a half hour columns of smoke were rising from dozens of villages and hamlets in the vicinity while a few remaining country-folk stood by weeping as they watched all their earthly possessions go up in flames.

Although the Japanese approach to Kuyung was sudden, there was no evidence of panic among the Chinese troops that have been beaten back from Shanghai.

The lines were manned in good order and reinforcements came steadily up the road from Nanking to take up reserve positions.

"We are from Canton, far away," one company commander told me. "We are cold and know nothing about what is taking place over that ridge."

"But Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek told us to hold this road. And we will hold it until we are all killed."

Twenty-three indictments handed down, three charging conspiracy to defraud and sixteen charging malfeasance, were based on transactions involving purchase of land by the city in the Port Newark and Newark Airport areas.

Following the service there the body was brought to Sedalia and burial was in Crown Hill cemetery.

Surviving besides her mother are two brothers, James and Charles, at home.

Mrs. Rose Harrison, 710 South Osage, is a cousin of Miss Redmond. James McGrath, of route 6, Sedalia, is also a cousin.

that it did not do, to get the views of the farmers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A survey has disclosed enough votes to pass the senate crop control bill, Senator Pope (D-Idaho) said today, despite the widespread criticism of many of its provisions.

Some legislators, however, expressed doubt that any farm legislation would reach President Roosevelt during the special session.

Leaders in both senate and house hope to get a vote by Wednesday, but the two measures are so different that it is a foregone conclusion a conference committee would have to find some middle ground.

Secretary Wallace was reported dissatisfied with both senate and house bills. One official close to him said Wallace might urge President Roosevelt to veto either passed.

Wallace has called the senate bill "too restrictive" because it does not permit sufficient surpluses.

He was said to believe the house bill would permit excessive surpluses.

Consider Amendments

The house continued today consideration of amendments to its bill. The senate, in an effort to speed the slow-paced debate on its measure, agreed unanimously to limit the speaking time of each senator to 15 minutes on amendments and to 30 minutes on the bill itself.

Legislators have attacked some provisions as delegating too-broad powers to the secretary of agriculture. Senator King (D-Utah) contended the senate measure "dictator" and Senator Borah (R-Idaho) said a "complete bureaucratic control" would be set up.

Sponsors have urged that if the farm program is to accomplish its purpose, it must have some teeth for effecting crop control compliance.

Some legislators have contended control features of the bill would drive many farmers into dairying, to the detriment of those already in this field.

Sums Up Prospects

Senator Bailey (D-NC) summed up today the prospects for farm legislation:

The senate will pass a bill and the house will pass a bill. The house won't like the senate bill, and the senate won't like the house bill. Then we will all just wait and hope that a conference between representative of the two chambers will be able to work out something satisfactory."

numbers relayed to police headquarters.

Failed to Return

Fried attended a motion picture show Saturday night with his wife, a brother-in-law, and the latter's wife. On the way home they dropped him at his mother's house to get his automobile, which he had parked there. The other's went on to Fried's own apartment.

His relatives waited for him and when he did not return they became anxious. At 1:30 a. m. Sunday an alarm that he was missing was flashed over the police wires and two hours later his car was found at Rosedale Gardens, in Mamaroneck avenue, at the edge of the city.

Harold Daniels, Fried's brother-in-law and a New York building financier, denied today a ransom note had been received so far as he knew, but the report was confirmed in county police headquarters.

Fried lives at Briarview Manor in Mamaroneck Road with his wife and 8-year-old son, Arlen. He is a son of the late Joseph Fried, head of the Empire Sand and Gravel Company and of Joseph Fried and Son, Bronx Cinder Company. Fried is manager of the Bronx office of the Colonial Sand and Stone Company.

At the New York office of the federal bureau of investigation the agent in charge said he knew nothing of reports that Fried had been abducted. He added that the bureau, if active in the case, would issue only what statements it deemed necessary.

Members of the Fried family, meanwhile, were reported willing to pay the ransom to obtain Fried's release, and were reported, therefore, to be denying that the federal agents had been called upon to help, presumably in order to facilitate ransom negotiations.

The first inkling that Fried was believed kidnapped came yesterday when county police officials went to Mrs. Fried's home.

They discussed the case, it was reported, but had no definite information at the time as to what had happened to Fried. Later in the day, it was reported, the demand for $100,000 ransom was received, and efforts were made at once to assure the abductors that Fried's release would be bought, but that the price was too high.

SISTER SLAYER IN SELF DEFENSE PLEA

ROCK PORT, Mo., Dec. 6.—Preliminary hearing began this afternoon for Frank L. Bales, 61-year-old crippled farmer, charged with first degree murder in the shooting of his sister, Mrs. Alta Bales Morrow, 46.

Dr. Charles D. Humbert, Nodaway county coroner, who conducted an autopsy, was the first witness. Mrs. Morrow died in a Maryville hospital last Tuesday night a few hours after the shooting.

Bales has indicated he will plead self defense. He told officers he quarreled with his sister over her plans to marry a Nebraska farm hand. Bales, a bachelor, and his sister had lived together since her divorce 24 years ago.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN CROSSING CRASH

LAWRENCE, Kas., Dec. 6.—Four young residents of Topeka were killed late Sunday in a grade crossing accident near Perry, 14 miles west of here.

The four were Samuel Weir, Jr., 17, Donald Dodd, 16, Nadine Knight, 14, and Arlene Smith, 14. Descriptions of the accident varied. One Union Pacific employee said the automobile the four were in was struck first by an east-bound Rock Island passenger train and then by the west-bound Union Pacific streamliner. Both trains passed the crossing within a few seconds. Highway patrolmen said another Union Pacific employee doubted that the car was hit by the second train.

Pre-Cooling Table Fowl

Particularly Important

The pre-cooling and proper handling of poultry killed on the farm or at a packing plant is particularly important because the bloom will be quickly lost if the birds are not pre-cooled without delay and also handled properly, asserts a writer in the Montreal Herald. Most of the farm poultry is killed in the fall when cool temperatures prevail. If proper care is then observed in assembling and packing the birds they can be placed on the market in the best of condition. Wherever poultry is handled, the temperature of the pre-cooling room should be checked frequently with a reliable thermometer. A temperature of 32 degrees Fahrenheit is the best for pre-cooling and handling dressed poultry. Fresh poultry can be handled satisfactorily in a temperature a few degrees higher than 32 but never higher than 40 nor less than 32; if less than 32 the birds will freeze. Every effort should be made to pack the birds quickly and if intended for cold storage they should be frozen without delay. If they are intended for immediate consumption or for sale as fresh birds, they should be held at a temperature of 32 degrees.

Some of the chief essentials in handling dressed poultry are: See that all birds are bled and plucked properly and that the feet and the mouth are washed clean. Birds should be hung up by both feet and allowed to pre-cool for twenty-four hours. The temperatures should be checked frequently with a thermometer. In transporting poultry to assembling or selling points it should be held at the temperature at which it was pre-cooled.

Meat of the Turkey

It is characteristic for all turkeys to have the two layers of white meat on the breast. Certain strains are developed that yield a larger percentage of white meat than others, and management conditions have an influence upon the percentage of breast meat. Birds raised under semiconfined conditions and where the weather is cool yield a larger percentage of white meat than range birds raised under different conditions.

For safety dairy products are best kept covered and in the coldest place in the refrigerator.

The horse's collar should be thoroughly cleaned each evening after the day's work is done.

CLUB OWNERS OF BIG LEAGUES IN THREE-DAY MEET

Growing Suspicion That Brooklyn May Still Hold Van Mungo

By PAUL MICHELSON
CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(P)—If no news is good news there's bound to be a lot of happiness for the paying baseball customers before the three-day meeting of the diamond traders is over Wednesday night.

Nothing of importance happened in the major league playing mart over the week-end except maybe that the traders developed flat feet and bunions from standing around hotel lobbies waiting for the others to surrender a million dollar player for an autograph and some buttons. Babe Herman of Brooklyn outfielder game turned in the only business by signing to play for the New York Giant farm in Jersey City.

Club owners of the American and National leagues convene in different hotels today to discuss schedules and affairs of state. Wednesday, they meet in a joint session to hold their annual clinic over the baseball. Some want the horsehide dealer and some want it to stay lively. Indications are the ball will be a bit deader when the 16 major league clubs go post-war next April.

As the managers again took up their vigil behind potted palms and in telephone booths today, there was a growing suspicion that Brooklyn, after all, had Van Mungo and was stuck with him. The Dodgers want far too much money and the would-be buyers are all but picketing salesman Burleigh Grimes. They reason Brooklyn soon will be ready to sell Mungo for a song, so they're waiting the stubble-bearded Burleigh out.

"Razzy" Terry On Pipe
The anti-Bill Terry faction was having a big time for itself today over an incident that brought the Giant colonel in a wisecracking battle with Yankee Joe McCarthy. Wild tales were circulated about the hotel lobbies but what actually happened was this:

McCarthy was chatting idly with some newspapermen when Terry passed by. Each said "Hi there." That was all until McCarthy, noticing Terry was putting on his big pipe, remarked: "Hey, Bill, how do you expect to manage a ball club smoking that pipe?"

Terry halted and frowned. "Oh, you blue ribbon guys." As the colonel marched off, somewhat in a huff, McCarthy said to his friends:

"Guess Terry got mad, didn't he?"

That was all but the incident didn't make McCarthy and Terry closer friends. It rankled McCarthy that Terry never congratulated him after the Yanks had beaten the Giants in the world series, either in '36 or '37. On the other hand, pipe smoking long has been an aversion to McCarthy. Yankee Joe doesn't like pipe smokers on his ball club because he thinks a pipe smoker is a contented man—to contented to play good baseball.

And yet—there's the greatest pipe smoker in the game with the Gashouse Gang of old St. Looney. His name is Ducky Medwick.

THE SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(P)—Those Chicago pictures showing Burleigh Grimes smoking a pipe with a regulation bowl didn't make a hit with Brooklyn fans. They fear it indicates the Dodgers are slowly returning to normalcy. . . . The South Dakota school which fired Stub Allison, California's Rose Bowl coach, doesn't know what it is to have a real red face. . . . The University of Nevada gave the air to Buck Shaw, coach of Santa Clara's unbeaten Sugar Bowl team, not once, but twice—once as freshman and once as varsity coach. . . . Some of alumni out there still are looking for the guy who fired Buck.

Reliable sources say Stuffie McInnis, ex-big league star, will leave Norwich (Vt.) University to coach baseball at Cornell. . . . Little Dave O'Brien, Texas Christian's spark plug, may not be the best back in the Southwest Conference, but he certainly was the busiest. . . . In their ten games, the Frogs ran 730 plays from scrimmage. . . . O'Brien was either the ball carrier, passer or kicker on 486. . . . He lugged the ball 166 times, passed 234 times and kicked 82 times, besides attempting three field goals. . . . Nice going, Dave.

Collitch or pro football: . . . The Polo Grounds was sold out yesterday for the first time since the baseball season—and the pros did it. . . . Write your own ticket. . . . Washington certainly turned on the juice. . . . Between them, Cliff Battles and Sammy Baugh had the Giants crazy. . . . Battles is the best running back in the league for our money, and Baugh is every bit as good as they said he was. . . . And that's plenty. . . . Wonder where George Preston Marshall got those real injuries he lugs around as part of the Redskins' side show?

There are two R. Johnsons on the Pitt Basketball team. . . . Both are left forwards. . . . They are listed in the lineup as "R. Johnson No. 1 and R. Johnson No. 2." . . . Tony Galento, the Newark nightstick, visited the six day bike race the other night and ordered a bottle of beer, neglecting to cough up for same. . . . "Do you want it charged?" . . . Asked the butcher. . . . "Sorry, pal," apologized Tony. . . . "I forgot I wasn't in my own joint over in Jersey." . . . Rumors that a syndicate, headed by former Mayor Jimmy Walker and Jock Whitney, will buy the Dodgers are said to be holding up the sale or trade of Van Mungo. . . . Tommy Farr, who is due this week to seek Schmeling and Thomas, has been cleaning up with theater appearances in England at $1,000 to $1,500 a throw.

CLIFF AND SAMMY AS CRACK SCORERS

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—What possibly is the most effective scoring combination in football history—Cliff Battles, the ball-carrying will o' wisp, and Sammy Baugh, the peerless passer—has shot the surprising Washington Redskins through to the championship of the eastern division of the National Professional Football league.

Sammy and Cliff and the rest of the remarkable Redskins did it the terrific way yesterday, terrorizing the New York Giants 49 to 14. Among the 58,000 fans at the Polo Grounds were 7,000 wild-eyed Washington rooters, who ripped up the goal posts and everything.

The way, Cliff and Sammy cut dummies behind their savagely trusting forward wall, it is difficult to picture them as losers next Sunday, when they meet the Chicago Bears, champions of the western division, at Chicago's Wrigley Field in their play-off for the league title. The Bears, with nothing at stake, steam-rollered the Chicago Cardinals, 42 to 28, in their final yesterday.

Cliff the runner and Sammy the thrower demoralized the Giants. Between them, they chopped the New Yorkers' defense into kindling wood, and it previously had been regarded as one of the stoutest defenses in the game. In fact, the Giants' coach, Steve Owens, made the unfortunate remark only two days ago that the Washington line "didn't belong in the same league" with his.

WHEAT LOSES PART OF EARLY ADVANCE
CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Reacting because of only hard to mouth buying on the part of European importers, wheat late today lost much of 2½ cents advance scored earlier.
It was estimated export purchases of North American wheat today totaled only 400,000 bushels. A decrease of 5,500,000 bushels in the United States what visible supply was virtually ignored.
At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1¼ to 1½ cent above yesterday's finish. Dec. 6½¢ to 96½¢, May 94¢ to 94½¢, corn ¾ to ¾ cent up. Dec. 54½¢ to 54½¢, May 57½¢ to 57½¢, oats unchanged to ¼ cent advance.

WORM INDUSTRY GETS A SETBACK

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Things are bad in the worm industry.

Mysterious intrigues and depletion of natural resources paint a gloomy prospect, says Henry Ernst, the worm magnate—he sells 'em as tropical fish food to some of the world's biggest worm users.

Employing with vehemence such terms as "inferior merchandise" and "muscling in," he averred today that the market is being flooded with worms from some prolific and hitherto untapped worm mines in upstate New York and Pennsylvania.

Ernst doesn't know who's behind the glut, but he suspects a plot—probably an underground one.

He blames the WPA for depletion of natural resources. They're draining swamps and building buildings on some of the best worm-hunting grounds, he says.

He attributes his success to a sixth, or "worm" sense. "Blindfolded," he says, "I can stick my finger into a ball of mud and tell you if there's a worm in it."

Outside of that elucubration, trade trick stealers can't worm a thing out of him.

As a result of the mysterious influx of worms—ordinary cheap garden earthworms, he says—Ernst announced he henceforth is specializing in only the highest quality—light pink Tubifex, grade A.

Meanwhile he's investigating the "unfair competition" and figures it can't go on indefinitely.

Some day, he says, the worm will turn.

CHALLENGE TO CHIZZLEWITS

THERE once was a merchant named Chizzlewit who trimmed his tree every Christmas and his customers every day.

He was a canny creature, this Chizzlewit, and knew how to win a customer by guile. The shirts he sold were cheaply woven, packed with powder to make them seem firm. To conceal their inferiority he told customers that he always wore them himself. In the glassware department he "made up" for poor quality by giving a set of pretty paper doilies with every purchase. He knew many such clever tricks and used them without reserve.

Chizzlewit never advertised. He knew too well he could never fool people for long in print.

Advertising must live up to its own claims. That is why you can have full confidence in goods consistently advertised. If the maker has a worthy product, fairly priced, he wants as many people as possible to know about it. If the product is unworthy, the printed word will only expose it sooner.

Christmas, and all around the calendar, read advertising. Makers and merchants stake their reputation, in cold black type, that what you read is true.

TAPSTERS APPEAL FOR ENFORCEMENT

By The Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 6.—Springfield taproom owners, dissatisfied with liquor law enforcement here, will invite Thomas Fitzgerald, state liquor commissioner, to come here to discuss reported violations, they said today.

Fourteen of the tapsters met and appointed Bunch Sansone to extend the invitation. Ed Dickey, active in the informal association of taproom owners, said, "there's no doubt that every one of the taproom owners is dissatisfied with the way things in general are handled here, and that they want a change."

One of the tapsters complained that "places licensed to sell only beer are selling whisky, and some outlying beer parlor owners are not observing the closing hours required by law."
